Tennis News:

Hi Tennis Players,

Have you heard about the UTR? It is the latest ranking system and if you are interested in competing, most likely the event will be a UTR event. UTR stands for Universal Tennis Rating, an algorithm-based system. It ranks every player on one unified scale.

Most of you are familiar with the NTRP (National Tennis Rating Program) which ranked players on a scale of 1.0 to 7.0.

UTR calculates your rating based on the number of games, rather than the number of matches you win, and factors in your opponent's rating. UTR only includes results from your 30 most recent matches. A global rating like UTR is very motivating for all levels of players, says UTR consultant Dave Miley. The scale goes from 0.50 to 16.50.

Roger Federer was rated 16.25 at the start of 2018 and Simona Halep was ranked 13.25. Comparing pros to non-pros gives all players who compete an idea of where they fall.

Top ranked college player, Martin Redlicki, is ranked 14.42, while a junior player, Whitney Osuigwe, is 12.15. A typical club player is 6.0.

Advocates feel as though this rating system can help someone pick the right adult league, find the most competitive match at a local club, or help one get recruited to play college tennis.

UTR has over 650,000 rated players from over 190 countries and has processed over 6 million results.

It is good to know this as many local tournaments in Lubbock are playing as UTR events.

We held a junior UTR at Hillcrest in March and had a great turnout.
See you on the courts!
